*"Coo-ee-
Wont YOU come?"*

From 1914 - 1918, 465 volunteers from Braidwood and the District joined the Australian Imperial Force in World War I.
88 lost their lives, never to return home. This is their story.

1914-1918
THE GREAT WAR

100
YEARS OF ANZAC

THE SPIRIT
LIVES
2014 - 2018

Introduction

This year, 2015, marks the centenary of the start of the Gallipoli campaign and Australia's involvement as a nation in the greatest and most terrible conflict ever seen to that time. Australians joined their Armed Forces in large numbers. Their motives were as varied as their upbringings, from a need to save the Empire, of which Australia was an integral part, to the desire to have a great adventure.

Braidwood and district were no exception. Over the four years from 1914 to 1918, from a population of about 5000, 465 men and women from what is now the 2622 postcode area – including Braidwood, Majors Creek, Araluen, Mongarlowe, Nerriga, Ballalaba and Jembaicumbene joined the Navy or Army. Of these 377 returned to Australia. Sadly, 88 lost their lives.

A varying amount of their history is recorded in the Australian War Memorial. Some of their names, but not all, are recorded on local memorials. More is recorded in limited local histories and newspapers, not readily available to the general public; and the people who lived with and knew these distant relatives are also passing on.

The Braidwood RSL Sub Branch has collected all the information available from the Australian War Memorial and local sources, including the Braidwood Museum. Families, still resident in the district, have added their family knowledge and their precious memorabilia.

This booklet is the available story of Frederick Robert Dowell, one of the 88 Braidwood volunteers who did not return from World War I. It contains his details as recorded in the World War I Roll of Honour, his Enlistment Papers, Field Service records, any Casualty notification, correspondence relating to his death, details of decorations won, any available photos, and, in some instances, family correspondence or recollections.

Frederick Robert Dowell died for his country, for you and for me. Please pause a moment to remember him.

Lest We Forget.

WORLD WAR I

World War I lasted four years, from 4 August 1914 until 11 November 1918. It began after the assassination of the heir to the Austrian throne. The axis powers were Germany and Austria. Russia and France were the initial allies. When Germany invaded Belgium, Britain entered the war on the side of Russia and France.

The war was in Europe, the Western Front was in France and Belgium. The Eastern Front was Russia and Austria-Hungary. Africa was another front because of colonial possessions on that continent, and after Turkey entered the war on 1 November 1914, the Middle East became another theatre of war.

Australians generally thought of themselves as an integral part of the British Empire and the Australian Army and Navy were part of the Imperial Forces. In 1914, Australia's Prime Minister, Andrew Fisher, immediately promised Australian support for Britain 'to the last man and the last shilling.' The Australian population was less than five million. 324,000 Australians served overseas. 61,720 lost their lives. 155,000 were wounded. 4,044 became prisoners of war (397 died while captive).

The first Australian troops were sent to Egypt in 1915. The ANZACS – Australian and New Zealand Army Corps – were engaged in battle on the Gallipoli Peninsula against the Turks to control the Dardanelles' and open the way to Eastern Europe with their fateful landing on 25 April 1915.

The ANZACS were evacuated on 19-20 December 1915. The Gallipoli campaign resulted in the deaths of 7,600 Australians and the wounding of 19,000. Despite the defeat, the legend attached to the heroism, comradeship and valour of the soldiers remain a source of Australian pride and national identity.

Following is a selection of articles and letters taken from The Braidwood Dispatch and published in Braidwood Letters from the Front by Roslyn Maddrell

Mr F. H. Dowell received a letter from his son, Private F. Dowell, who was quartered at Fovant Camp, Salisbury, UK.

We have not done much work here yet, only route marching. We got three and a half days leave on the 17th November (1916), which we spent in London. I spent two and a half hours looking through the Tower of London. It was very interesting to be on the actual spot one had read so much about in history. On Sunday, I had a look round Westcliffe. It is a place something like Manly is to Sydney for the London people. On the following day I went along to St. Paul's. It is a lovely place and took me a good while to go through it.

There are 375 steps to the stone gallery; they won't allow anyone higher up since the war commenced, on account of spies. I also went through the crypt and saw the tombs of a lot of England's great men – Nelson, Wellington, Roberts, Florence Nightingale, Christopher Wren, and a whole lot more. I also spoke across the famous whispering gallery. It is wonderful how every sound can be heard across the space.

After my inspection of St. Paul's I had a glimpse through Westminster Abbey, the Museum, and London Bridge. I only had a few hours, and could not see much of each. It is dark here at about 4:30pm and at night time London and all towns here are in almost total darkness on account of Zepp raids.

We had to be back at Waterloo Station at 2:30pm on Tuesday. Thus ended my first tour of London. I hope to see more of it before I go to the front.

Private Dowell asks to give his kindest regards to all Braidwood friends.

Mr Dowell's other son Private F. Dowell writes from France, February 1917.

He had only joined up with his battalion, and was out trench digging all the day of writing, and on returning to camp he found his brother, Private S. A. Dowell, waiting to see him. He had been waiting about four hours. Steve, he says, looks the picture of health, and is just the same old bag of tricks – not a bit different for all the hard times he has gone through. He adds that he “he hopes to weather all the storm in front of him as well as Steve has done. I am in good health.”

Private Fred Dowell writing to his parents dated March 8th 1917. “Somewhere in France”, opens in a joyous strain by stating that, after six months absence he had received his first of letters from home. He says,

I came through my term in the front line safely. Fritz was raining his bullets and shells, and gas all around us. Some of the poor boys in my reinforcement were killed and a good many hurt, four or five being killed with one shell. We got a dose of his gas the first morning we were in the trenches.

My throat felt a little sore, but that was all.

It was bright moonlight weather while we were up the front, and fairly cold. The last day we were there it snowed. The Somme mud is some mud, as the Yanks say: you sink up to your knees in place, and it is a job to pull your feet out, it clings to you most affectionately too.

It is terrible to see the ruin that abounds everywhere here. Where ever you go for miles, where farms and villages and homes were, there is a sense of absolute desolation. The ground is nothing but one mass of shell holes, hardly a yard of it has escaped. God knows how anyone could have lived there during the bombardment that must have gone on. It is a terribly heartbreaking sight. I never realized it till I saw it. Pictures and reading cannot convey the real meaning to anyone. I hope I shall be able to forget it all, but I am afraid I won't.

Private Dowell has not received any of the many parcels sent to him as yet.

Private F. R. Dowell's brother, Private S. W. Dowell returned to Australia in 1918 and was discharged in 1919.

1917: The Braidwood Dispatch reporting the death of Frederick Robert Dowell.

The Roll of Honor.

The list of district boys who have lost their lives fighting for the Empire continues to increase and multiply. The latest victim of Hunnish "frightfulness" is Private F. R. Dowell, son of Mr. F. H. Dowell, of the Central Stores, Braidwood. A telegram to this effect was received by the Rev. W. D. Kennedy on Tuesday night, who immediately communicated the sad news to the parents of the deceased. The date of death is given as the 5th May. On that date the 4th Battalion, to which Private Dowell was attached, was engaged in the fighting for Bullecourt. It is presumed, therefore, that he lost his life in this battle, which has been described as one of the fiercest of the whole campaign. The late Private Dowell, who would have been 23 years of age in July, enlisted in February, 1916. He left Australia in August last and landed in France after undergoing the necessary training in England, on the 4th February last, when he met his brother, Private S. Dowell, who took part in the Gallipoli campaign, and was then fighting in France. Although he had only been a comparatively short time on the western front, the deceased had participated in several actions. There was no soldier who left Australia who was fired with greater patriotism than he. Although he was the right-hand man in his father's store, with fine prospects ahead of him, with a lady love to whom he was engaged to be married, and surrounded with every comfort that makes life worth living and hanging on to, he could no resist what he conceived to be the call of duty, although he realised what it meant and the hard and strenuous life it stood for. His letters to his parents breathed the spirit of patriotism and a fervent desire to beat the Hun at whatever sacrifice. That he paid for his patriotism with his life is indeed a matter for sincere regret, although it will do much to soften the blow that his death has administered to his bereaved parents, for whom the most profound sympathy is felt amongst all classes in the community. A finer type of Australian manhood it would not be possible to find anywhere. Always quiet and unobtrusive, he was yet of a lovable disposition, popular alike with the employees in the store and its numerous clientele, and esteemed and respected by all who knew him. Mr. and Mrs. Dowell have been overwhelmed with condolences in their sad bereavement.

Acknowledgements

Everybody responded enthusiastically to the idea of capturing the information about Braidwood's 88 World War I veterans who lost their lives. The Braidwood RSL Sub Branch is most grateful for the support they received in carrying out this task and would like to acknowledge those of whom we are aware: Karen, Chris and Renee Nelson, Roslyn Maddrell, Karen Shea, Jill Clarke, Rod McClure, Ben and Meaghan Frohling, Diane McGrath, Us On Mondays Quilting Group, Len Mutton & Co and local shopkeepers for their World War I window displays.

Thank you to the students and teachers of Braidwood Central School and St. Bedes School who have embraced these soldiers and have honoured their memories on Anzac Day 2015.

The Braidwood RSL Sub Branch raised a good proportion of the funds for the cost of producing these booklets. The efforts of the members of the sub branch involved are very much appreciated. This money was augmented by welcome funding from the Federal Government through the ANZAC Centenary Local Grants Program and the Braidwood Community Bank.

To all those who helped in any way, many thanks. Your efforts have ensured we remember these Braidwood and District Veterans well.

"Wild day in Braidwood: When Braidwood woke up on Tuesday morning to find the 'glad tidings of great joy' awaiting it that Germany had signed the armistice and the frightful carnage of the past four years or so had come to an end it simply went mad with delight. No other words could adequately describe the excitement that followed." "Braidwood Letters from the Front" by Roslyn Maddrell.
